Gardening Tips

Use Good Products

By John Ferguson

I heard a story the other day about a person whom bought a cheap product last summer that was called compost and applied it to their turf grass. Within a few days the grass started yellowing, some areas started dying, weeds moved in, had water problems, etc.

They were forced to spend lots and lots of extra money on saving the lawn and trying to undo all the damage not to mention the unsightliness of the turf. It reminded me of a old gardening Proverb I used to hear on Dewy Compton's garden show when I was growing up:

One gets better results from using a little bit of a good product than lots of a bad product! (And it almost always cost less in the long run).
